

Editorial: European Endodontic Journal – More Indexations and Appreciation to Editors and Reviewers

Ismail Davut Çapar, Hany Mohamed Aly Ahmed

The European Endodontic Journal (EEJ) has been served, for the fifth year, as a convenient platform for researchers and clinicians, and we hope EEJ readers enjoy the diversity of articles published in the EEJ. This year, and along current indexations in Web of Science Emergency Citation Index and Scopus and PubMed Central (PMC), the EEJ has been accepted for indexation in PubMed Medline, EBSCO, ASOS, ProQuest and TUBITAK TR index. For 2020, we have received 320 submissions (Fig. 1), with an acceptance rate of about 14.38%. This reflects the quality that EEJ Editors expect from authors who would like to consider EEJ for their future submissions.

We would like to welcome our new editorial board member – Adham A. Azim (Department of Endodontics, University at Buffalo School of Dental Medicine, New York, USA).
